Stockholm, Sweden – May 24th, 2016 – Abios continues to add games to its ever-expanding roster, with the latest being Overwatch as the game officially launches. Abios makes it simple for fans of esports and Overwatch to find out when the next match and tournament takes place with full coverage.

Blizzard's' newest IP and much anticipated class based first person shooter has launched. With the public release Abios has added it to their coverage platform and API. Overwatch has seen immense growth in run-up to the game's official launch. "Since adding Super Smash Bros and Call of Duty, we decided it was time to add one of the newest games to esports," said Abios spokesman. "Not only is this the twelfth game that we cover, it also marks the fastest addition, and as of today our current and future partners can find the latest calendar information, live results, statistics and more in our API. It will of course also be found on our website, extension and our recently released iOS App, no matter where they are in the world."

The Overwatch franchise has become one of the biggest BETA successes in gaming history. The game had over 9,000,000 testers and is one of the most anticipated games of 2016. In just a little over 7 days there was more than 4,900,000,000 minutes (81 million hours) played. The future's looking bright for Overwatch and esports is firmly holding on for the ride.

Twelve games covered. Securing the lead even further in esports coverage.
